COUNTER-TERRORISM STUDIES

Executive Certificate Program at the Interdisciplinary Center (IDC) Herzliya, Israel

July 10-29, 2011

The Executive Certificate Program in Counter-Terrorism Studies, offered by the Lauder School of Government, Diplomacy and Strategy and the International Institute for Counter-Terrorism (ICT) at the Interdisciplinary Center (IDC) Herzliya, is a unique opportunity for professionals to learn about central issues in homeland security and counter-terrorism both from those with first-hand experience and those involved in cutting-edge research in these fields. Based on years of extensive research, instruction and work in the field, this multi-disciplinary program brings together the best of academic theory and practical knowledge.

For the past eight years, the Lauder School of Government has been offering courses on terrorism studies, counter-terrorism and homeland security. These courses are taught by leading scholars and Israeli security professionals from the ICT, a research institute at IDC Herzliya.

Dr. Boaz Ganor, Co-Founder and Executive Director of the ICT and Deputy Dean of the Lauder School of Government, is the program's director.

“ The instructors’ academic and real-world experience create an innovative course that is practical and much needed for the counter-terrorism arena. ”

Program Content

The Counter-Terrorism Studies Program combines academic study, simulations, workshops and on-site briefings. The courses provide concentrated, in-depth exposure to the phenomenon of modern terrorism and its characteristics, modus operandi, scope and dissemination throughout the world. In addition, participants will obtain an understanding of the challenge this phenomenon presents to decision-makers, security establishments, first responders and the business sector, based on the experience Israel has accumulated in the field. Circumstances have forced Israel to develop sophisticated counter-terrorism strategies and techniques and to amass extensive knowledge regarding terrorism. The program will allow participants from around the globe to benefit from Israel's experience and advanced international counter-terrorism efforts.

Courses for the 2011 Summer Semester

Ten Years Following the 9/11 Attacks: Where do we stand? What needs to be done? (Jenkins)

This course examines the nexus of terrorism, counterterrorism and homeland security. It is intended to acquaint students with the dynamics, policy options, and challenges involved in countering terrorism and defending the homeland and by doing so to establish a solid foundation upon which further expertise can be built.

The course will include among others, the following issues: "Where do we Stand against Al Qaeda, 10 Years Following the 9/11 Attacks", "Do-It-Yourself Terrorism: Countering Homegrown Terrorism in the United States and Europe", "Dilemmas in Homeland Security Policy: Transportation, Aviation and Maritime Terrorism" and "Post-Modern Terrorism: Assessing the Threat of Nuclear Terrorism".

The Circles of Radicalization (Adato & Fighel)

The course is composed of two modules – first, the threat and challenges will be presented, exploring the phenomena and threats of modern radicalization processes within Muslim communities and examining the use of ideological, educational and social aspects of radical Islam for the recruitment and support of terrorist jihadi organizations. Secondly, the course will explore the case study of "The Prison as a Component in the Terror Process: The Israeli Experience and Beyond" by analyzing the process of radicalization within the prison system, legal aspects of terror inmates, connection between terror & crime and ways of managing terror inmates.

Modern Terrorism and Counter-Terrorism Strategies (Ganor)

The course will explore the phenomena of modern and post-modern terrorism, including definitions, the connections between terrorism, media and public opinion, and specific modus operandi such as suicide terrorism and non-conventional terrorism. It will also include: intelligence, offensive and defensive measures, deterrence, punitive and legal measures and international cooperation.

Financing Terrorism - The Threat and the Response (Azani)

The course will deal with the financing of terror organizations and Global Jihad, in three parts: The nature of the threat and the sources of financing (independent, state-sponsors of terrorism, charitable organizations, funds, crime). The course will also examine financing from the viewpoint of the terror organizations – religious law authorization and fundraising efforts in a hostile and changing environment (the counter-financing campaign). Also presentation of test cases and their analysis – Hizbollah, Global Jihad.

Arab & Islamic Cultural Environment (Mimran)

The course provides comprehensive insights into the Arab and Islamic cultural environment, including its structures, accepted norms, values, social practices and characteristics of communication. Course participants will gain practical tools enabling them to better analyze situations and processes in the Arab environment, design useful policies when working with Arab and Islamic populations, and improve their communication skills.

Terrorism and Extortion (Lotan)

The course will analyze extortion by terrorists – i.e. hostage taking, kidnappings and hijackings – in different parts of the world, as well as the challenges and difficulties involved in negotiating with hostage-taking terrorists. This course will include interactive activities and group simulations.

Program Participants

The Counter-Terrorism Studies Program is designed for executives and practitioners who deal with homeland security and have counter-terrorism experience on various levels as well as scholars and graduate students who wish to expand their knowledge and understanding of the phenomenon.

Program Structure

The Counter-Terrorism Studies Program will be taught in English over a three-week period during July 10-29, 2011. It includes six graduate level courses delivered by top experts from Israel and abroad, who are among ICT's senior researchers and associates. Each course consists of 20 academic hours taught over a concentrated period of a week (see chart). Participants will be granted an Executive Certificate from ICT and the Lauder School of Government, Diplomacy and Strategy upon completion of the program. Participants may also register for only part of the program (between one and six courses). In that case, ICT and the Lauder School of Government will issue certificates for each course separately.

Tuition

Tuition for the Executive Certificate Program in Counter-Terrorism Studies is $5,360 (for all six courses). The tuition fee for participating in part of the program is $1,340 per course. Tuition fees do not include transportation to/from Israel or accommodation. If necessary, the program will help participants find suitable accommodation near the IDC Herzliya campus.

Counter Terrorism Studies Program - July, 10-29, 2011

ICT
International Institute for Counter-Terrorism

ICT is an academic policy research institute and think tank dedicated to developing innovative public policy solutions to international terrorism. The Institute applies an integrated, solutions-oriented approach built on a foundation of real world and practical experience.

The Institute seeks international cooperation in the global struggle against terrorism, paving the way for multilateral action against terrorist networks, benefactors and states sponsoring terrorism.

The Institute not only provides situational recommendations to the private sector, but also aims to affect policy at the highest levels and stimulate joint international cooperation.

“ This course gives insights into fundamental issues fueling global terrorism and opens up new possibilities and models for countering the threat. ”

Cary Gleicher, FBI's Legal attaché to Israel

“ The Counter-Terrorism Program is excellent for networking. I met wonderful people from all over the world. ”

Military Officer

“ There was a real combination of theory and practice. They were able to provide more concrete knowledge and examples than I can get at a university. ”

Ph.D. Candidate

“ The program gave an intellectual framework which is very useful for an analyst. ”

Intelligence Analyst

“ The courses were enlightening and the lectures were of an exceptionally high standard. I doubt anywhere in the world would you get such a gathering of people from security and academia, especially in such a short period of time. ”
